Malaria is caused by a protozoan belonging to the genus Plasmodium. Although there are over 400 species, four routinely cause disease in humans: Plasmodium falciparum, P. vivax, P. ovale, and P. malariae. While they all belong to the same genus, each species behaves quite differently in most aspects of their biology within the human and mosquito host.

Thrips (order Thysanoptera) are minute (most are 1 mm long or less), slender insects with fringed wings and unique asymmetrical mouthparts. Different thrips species feed mostly on plants by puncturing and sucking up the contents, although a few are predators. Approximately 6,000 species have been described.
